Six of last year's substitutes are on hand, however, these being Seiberts, sub end; Hollenback, sub tackle; Herbert, sub end; Macey, sub end; Briggs, sub center, and Coulthard, sub tackle.

Another cheering report from the university is the announcement that the whole college is interested in the preservation of pure athletic sport, and that no one division of students controls the football team. In other words, that college politics does not exist "o far as selecting the team is concern."

Mossman was another example. He was placed on the team because he was a Sigma Nu. He played like one. That is all that can be said of his record, His performance at the Kansus-Missouri game will be remembered, however, when he stopped as if struck by an ax every time he hit the opposing line.

struck by an ax every time he hit the opposing line.

On that occasion the field was covered with snow, and the lines had to be laid out in lamp black. Heavy men were at a premium, and, considering the importance of the game, it was expected that the best men would be set at work. Mossman was allowed to go on, however, presumably because he was an expert punter, a reputation to which he failed to live up at any stage.

Men like Scudder, Long John Robinson and other promising candidates were neglected on this occasion, and the year's record was a striking indication of the pernicious influences of fraternity predomination. That no such state of affairs exists at present is cause for congratulation on the part of the students.

Football conditions at the Missouri State University appear healthy this year, reports from Columbia announcing that Doctor Heatherington will tolerate nothing but the purest amateurism on the eleven. In this stand the doctor is supported by President Jesse, the cutators of the university and the members of the athletic association.

Due tribute has been paid the doctor for his attitude by all lovers of clean sport, but advantage has been taken of the occasion by members of rival colleges to insinuate that the attitude was prompted by too great tendencies toward professionalism of recent years. Deductions seem to have been frawn from the position that the attitude was assumed to abolish rather than to prevent professionalism.

The fact that such criticism exists is a striking instance of why a Draconian code should be applied to amateur sport, and the slightest deviation from amateurism held as reprehensible as professionalism. That unsatisfactory conditions have existed at times on the M. S. U. team cannot be denied, but in general the college has been as upright in its unrighteousness as any university in the Middle West, Yet it is now receiving criticisms for deviations from the beaten peth of amateur sport, just as if it had given itself up to professionalism.

FOOTBALL SEASON ISNEAR AT HAND,

Up Teams for the Fall Campaign.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL

New York, Sept. 16 .- The football season is early here. The time for all other participants in various sports to give way to the long-haired chaser of the pigskin is but a few weeks off. Already the big colleges have set about the making up of their teams for the fall campaign on the gridiron. Training of the men and practicing are now the order of events, and from every camp comes either the doleful story of lack of material or the expression of joy at the prospects of turning out a strong team. About a dozen candidates for the Yale football eleven reported to-day for practice at New Haven. Captain Charles Gould was in charge, assisted only by Michael C. Murphy, trainer. The matter of head coach is still in abeyance, as it is hoped that by don Brown may be able to spend at least a few weeks here. George T. Adee, 1895, quarter-back on the 1894 eleven, will come next week. In the meantime Albert H. Sharpe will render assistance to Captain Gould prior to his going South, To-day's work was perfunctory and very light. The practice will be increased daily, and its nature varied as more candidates report.

later and it is believed that the four veteran players should form a good nucleus for a strong team.

From Lafayette, Ind., comes the word that an unusually large number of students are enrolled at Purdue and that there is good football material among the bunch. Beloit has twenty men out practicing under Coach Hollister, and Merrill, Bunge, Buck, Cronk, McRae, Kaufner and several other well known players are among them.

At the University of Minnesota six of last year's men are expected to be in the game this season, Knowlton, captain and full back; Doble, quarter; Aure, end; Fee, left tackle; Mueller, right guard; Flynn, left guard; Heyt, right end, and Page, tackle, are all expected to be on hand. Rogers, formerly captain of the Carlisle team, will enter the law department of the university this year and is expected to have a place on the team.

Thorve is a promising candidate for a tackle position and McDonald of last year's second team is another candidate for a place on the line. Green and Harris are candidates for quarter in case Doble falls. Allen, who subbed for Herschberger on the Chicago team of 1888, will try for a position behind the line. Bidlake is said to be a sensational punter and is a candidate for half or full back. Shepley, full back of the 188 team, is also a candidate. Morgan Refuses Nephew a Vacation J. Pierpont Morgan, uncle of Gordon Brown, last year's captain, stil declines to allow Brown to take three months this fall from his duties in Mr. Morgan's office, Efforts to induce Mr. Morgan to change his decision have thus far failed. Nothing can be predicted of the outcome of the head coachship muddle at present.

this year and is expected to have a place on the team.

Bidlake is said to be a sensational punter and is a candidate for half or full back. Shelpey, full back of the 1838 team, is also a candidate.

At Wisconsin Phil King is getting a lot of recruits in shape. Emil Skow will probably be captain this year while a prominent candidate for center is Carl Hessinger, a 240-pound athlete with none of the clumsiness which characterized Hunter of Missouri two years ago. Wilmarth, Cochems and Schreiber are talked of for places, while Curtis will be back at his old place of left tackle. Lerum will be guard and Juneau and Abbott are candidates for ends.

Members of the Missouri team who were brought to the university merely to play ball have been few in number, and these Bose, Relter, De Witt, Underhill, G. Poe. Members of the Missouri team who were brought to the university merely to play ball have been few in number, and these were always entered in the agricultural department at least, so as to conform to the requirements of a college football player. They were required to attend their lectures, also, and outwardly, at least, were bona fide members of the university.

The mere fact that they were brought to play football, however, and had their entry fees paid, has created an unwholesome atmosphere about the athletic department of the university, and the reputation for professionalism which the college has thus acquired is just retribution. The whole affair is a striking instance that there can be no half-way methods in amateur sport.

Doctor Heatherington has recognized this and his action will receive the warm indorsement of every lover of clean sport. From the material now in the university it appears as if the team should class with any that ever represented the college.

on account of the heat and the condition of the men. Among those on the field were Bose, Reiter, De Witt, Underhill, G. Poe, Roper, Hale, Fisher, Montgomery, Gordon, Levick, Wright, Barihart, Singer, Stratton, Reed and Lloyd. De Witt, the heavy guard of last year, acted in the capacity of a full back. He weighs 195 pounds, and there is a fair probability that he may be tried at tackle.

After the first game on October 5, an effort will be made to obtain strong team work for both the 'varsity and scrub eleven.

Lively Competition Is in Order.

Every place on the team is vacant and although the composition of last fail's eleven remains very largely intact—four men having left the university—the new men will have an equal chance of winning positions on the team, which makes it evident that there will be a lively competition among the candidates. The football outlook at Harvard this year is not the best. The loss of such stars as Lawrence. Hallowell, Daly and Ellis is not an easy thing to overcome.

well, Daiy and Ellis is not an easy thing to overcome.

The policy Captain Campbell and Head Coach Reid will follow in developing this year's team will not be much different from last. It is expected that graduate coaches will be back to help more than ever before, for every Harvard man is determined to wipe out, in part, the defeat that the Crimson suffered at Yale's hands last fail.

Fin emity influence has been strongly shown on college teams in the past, and the fact that this is eliminated is as good news as that nothing but amateurism will go. A striking case of the evils of fraternity predominance was the team of 1838-59, which was largely controlled by the Sigma Nu Fraternity. The material for the team is about average. Harvard really loses only one regular line man. There is need of light, quick men more than everything else for the backs and ends.

The candidates will begin regular practice work on Thursday. was largely controlled by the Sigma Nu Fraternity.

This Greek letter society recognized that prominence in the football world would give its members standing in the college and throughout the State that they could not attain otherwise, and used the team as a means of advertisement. The manager was a Sigma Nu, and men were placed upon the team with their membership in the fraternity as their strongest qualifications.

Oak Hunter, a Moberly product, was an example. He was so tremendously fat that he was greeted with surcastic comments whenever he appeared on the field, and it was impossible for him to keep up with the team in rapid plays. His weight was of some avail in scrimmages, but nearly every unsuccessful candidate for the team had better qualifications for the place than Hunter.

All fraternities have not had this pernicious effect on the departments at college when in power to witness the Beta Theta Pl's, whom no one accused of favoritism in 1899-1990 when they were really in control of the baseball team. Nor were the Sigma Chi or Kappa Sigma fraternities accused of favoring their men, although both were powerful in the military department of the university in the same year.

That no fraternity possesses any power in the athletic department, however, is considered a good thing, even admitting that its influence would be used properly. College sport may demand that it be kept free from any such influence.

The experience of most Asthmatics has been that little if any relief has been afforded them by the methods heretofore employed, and, in fact, the disease has up to now been regarded as incurable.
